Dear Jack: As a first time representative on an international trip with The Markham Majors Peeewe Team, I was very impressed with the hard work you put into organizing all the hotels, meals and bus travel required to transport 50 plus people around Germany and Switzerland. The teams were evenly matched that resulted in five great exhibition games. Keeping everyone to the timetable was a job very well handled by Christoffer and the driver. The time spent in Interlaken and the fireworks on New Years' Day will be remembered for a very long time by all. I would be pleased to recommend Jack Holmes Sport Travel to any team that is thinking of doing an overseas trip as a once in a lifetime experience for all players and parents. TIPS IN PLANNING A TOUR

The decision, the team, and the commitment

Of course, once the decision is made to go on a Europe tour, the first thing to do before moving forward is to have a team ready to work and follow you to make it happen.

The Company

A lot of people think they are smart enough to plan the tour by themselves and of course, it's possible to do it. But the fact is there are so many unknown aspects and so many things to think about, that most of the time, the trip will end up a disappointing experience.

The budget, the destination, and the length

Your team needs to agree on the destinations, a length and of course a realistic budget. The most frequent major mistake from travel is planning to see too much! "Europe is small so we can get everywhere in no time." While that is true, the cold hard fact is that you will have a painful trip if you decide to move around too much from location to location and unpacking/packing in hotels.

Fundraising

Most of the time, teams will have to think about fundraising for the players which has been the case with some teams in the past.

Final Preparations

An important part of the final preparations is to schedule regular meetings with your Group to make sure they do not forget anything so that Unexpected things WILL not happen during your tour and it's better to be fully prepared for anything that may pop on-site. Such as allergy notices, medical insurance, travel insurance, passport photocopies, contact numbers for all people & hotels, flight tickets copies, etc. Also everyone should have a detailed itinerary so that they have a guideline of the tour.

On-site

You will have a Sports Tours Europe guide with you for your entire Tour so it should be pretty easy to go around without encountering too many problems.

After Your Tour

Everyone will probably have a lot of memories to bring back home with them along with pictures etc. and it is a great idea to all get together some weeks after with all the group where you can exchange thoughts and pictures about the trip.

2000/2001 Canadian Girls Reference

In August 2015 we traveled to Sweden/Finland with a group of 19 female hockey players and their families from Calgary, Alberta, Canada. This trip was coordinated entirely by Sports Tours Europe and I would like to take this opportunity to comment on what an incredible experience he delivered.

Jack was very easy to communicate with and promptly responded to any questions we had for him. He provided prices and accepted payment in Canadian funds which removed concerns with exchange rate fluctuations. Jack's experience in planning these trips showed in the accommodations, travel and balance of activities. The hotels were very nice and the bus service to and from all activities was stellar. Jack provided a great balance of site seeing and hockey. Cultural tours such as the Vasa Warship Museum, Old Town, Drottningholm Castle and the Suomenlinna Sea Fortress provided the history while fun events like the Cruise ship from Stockholm to Helsinki and the swim/sauna added immensely to the trip. The interaction of the players after the games created new friendships half way across the world. A definite highlight of the trip would be having the Finish teams in the stands cheering "go Canada go" in our final game and the interaction in the arena that followed the game.

I would like to thank Jack for delivering an incredible experience that provided lifelong memories and would highly recommend his services to other groups looking to travel overseas.
